Backstory

Born Cinnabar Vell of House Aelmoss — a name she has not used in eleven years. Expected to study sigil-craft and marry into a respectable elven house, she picked locks instead. Eventually she picked the wrong one: a private library her family did not want anyone to know existed. She learned three things she was not supposed to learn, and left before her family could decide what to do with her.

Eleven years on the road have made her quick, watchful, and good company — provided you don't ask about the ring, the letter, or House Aelmoss. She arrived in Driftmoor following a rumor about a moor-witch who trades secrets for memories. She hasn't decided whether to find the witch, or to let the witch find her.
