Pippa Thistlewren

PERSONALITY TRAITS

Bright and impulsive, Pippa talks fast, loves fast, and treats curiosity as something close to sacred.

RACE & CLASS PROFILE

Small even for a fairy, all quick wings and kinetic posture, with wild dark curls full of leaves and accidental trophies. Her brown skin catches a faint shimmer that brightens when she is excited. Lavender eyes track three things at once, and her clothes look assembled from joy, weather, and impulse.

BACKSTORY

Pippa left the Whistlewren, her fey family, chasing old fey knowledge and a question she's never quite said out loud. A locket holding a charred splinter from a childhood barn fire travels everywhere with her — a private shame she hasn't resolved, tangled up with the wild magic she's still learning to trust rather than fear. She arrived in Driftmoor mid-thunderstorm asking everyone she met about the moor-witch, and has since found people before she found answers. She's pretending those are separate outcomes and hasn't quite convinced herself.
