Tobin Aldermere

PERSONALITY TRAITS

Warm and unhurried, Tobin counsels through stories and asks more questions than he answers.

RACE & CLASS PROFILE

Broad-shouldered and comfortably grounded, with brown hair gone silver at the temples and warm eyes lined by easy laughter. His traveling clothes are practical and worn clean, and his wooden holy symbol hangs at his chest with the familiarity of a second heartbeat. He carries a mace as a reluctant necessity rather than an identity.

BACKSTORY

Tobin trained as an acolyte of the Bright Hearth, a domestic, hospitality-centered faith that taught him healing outranks argument in a crisis. He intended only to pass through Driftmoor on his circuit, but kept finding one more person who needed him and one more reason to stay — first taking on chapel calls to support an overworked local priest, then simply staying. He suspects that's either providence or vanity, and has decided he's willing to be corrected by events either way. His travel journal, filled with names of people he's helped, has gotten considerably longer than he planned.
